The Parlour

Located just steps away from Park Avenue's hustle and bustle, you'll find New York's perfect intimate hideaway, The Parlour. The Parlour pays tribute to the Hotel's 1920's origin. Our food and beverage offerings are crafted in a way to take you on a journey of the Hotel's history, city, and culture, artistically paired in style with local, sustainable and seasonal ingredients.

Visit The Parlour's page to explore the latest on upcoming events, Jazz features, or cocktail specials (such as The Bee's Knees crafted using honey from our rooftop apiary).

Currently open daily from 5pm to 11.30pm –
for drinks & bar fare.

The Barclay through the Centuries

17th Century

When Manhattan was discovered in the 17th century, the land where The Barclay now stands was a forest populated by deer, beavers and other game. Gentle streams and brooks flowed down hills and emptied into what is now the East River. Indian trails were the only signs of human habitation in this part of the land.

18th Century

By the late 18th century the land was divided into farms. A four-story orphanage was erected which remained until the 1890s. Around the turn of the century the orphanage was torn down and tracks for the New York Central Railroad were built underneath (later shared with the Waldorf-Astoria and used by the likes of Franklin Roosevelt and General Douglas MacArthur).

19th & 20th Century

By 1913, virtually the entire area was an open cut containing myriads of railroad tracks leading into the new Grand Central Terminal. On Fifth Avenue the mansions and chateaux's of America's super-rich were being torn down to make way for apartment buildings to house the uber wealthy. Madison and Lexington Avenues suddenly became exceedingly desirable, particularly in the East 40s.

Funded by railroad and shipyard pioneers, The Vanderbilt Family, construction of The Barclay went underway and in 1926 opened its doors. The hotel was built by Cross & Cross, the same builders of the famed Tiffany & Co. flagship store located on Fifth Avenue. Harold Stirling Vanderbilt himself (inventor of the card game Contract Bridge) lived in the Hotel for 16-years.

The Barclay quickly grew in reputation as a hotel where society and the well-heeled could find "atmosphere and comfort". The hotel's unobtrusive luxury and centralized location appealed to movie stars, diplomats, captains of industry and leading sport figures who stayed knowing their privacy would be protected. Bette Davis, Marlon Brando, Gloria Swanson, and Ernest Hemmingway were considered frequent guests. The Ivy League Cornell Club of New York moved into the Hotel's entire third floor in 1939 and remained for 23 years.

In 2016, celebrating the revival of its 90-year legacy, the Hotel re-opened after being closed for two-years and going through the most ambitious renovation of its history.

Modernization of every detail was taken into careful consideration while maintaining the luxurious residential-style the Hotel had always been known for.

The Parlour is our introduction to The Barclay. It highlights our beginning, our journey, and our future. We invite you to join us.

Bee's Knees

Beefeater Gin | Rooftop Honey | Fresh Lemon Juice

A favorite during the roaring 20's during the Prohibition. Historically, this cocktail was originally created to mask bathtub gin (homemade liquor). Today it's a refined cocktail, containing premium gin. At the Barclay, the Bees Knees cocktail is crafted with honey from our very own Rooftop Garden Hives to create a delightful taste, suitable for a year-round cocktail.

Chili Mule

Arbikie Chili Vodka | Ginger Beer | Fresh Lime Juice |
Rosemary Simple Syrup

French 75

Bootlegger New York Gin | Lemon Juice | Cane Sugar |
Sparkling Wine

An early form of this was created in 1915 at the New York Bar in Paris—later Harry's New York Bar—by barman Harry MacElhone. Others say that thirsty Allied soldiers created the drink during World War I when they wanted to mix highballs and club soda wasn't available, so they substituted Champagne.

Jungle Bird

Plantation Pineapple Rum | Sage Campari | Pineapple | Lime | Sugar

The Local Martini

Our Vodka | Lillet Blanc | Olive Juice

Distilled locally in Chelsea, NY

Ladybird

Pomp & Whimsey Gin Cordial | El Tesoro Tequila Blanco |
Watermelon Juice | Lime Juice | Floral

"Made by women for women in Downtown Los Angeles, California"

Quintessential G&T

Gin | Aromatic Tonic Water | Seasonal Macerated Fruit and Herbs

Paloma on Fire

Casamigos Mezcal | Grapefruit Juice | Jalapeno Simple Syrup |
Lime Juice | Club Soda

Although little is known about the historical origin of the Paloma it continues to be the most popular tequila-based cocktail in Mexico. Some believe that it is named after La Paloma ("The Dove"), a popular folk song composed in the early 1860s

Socialite Sangria

Tanqueray 10 Gin | Cointreau | Fresh Pineapple | Orange Juice |
Wine | Fresh Fruit

Vieux Carré

Maker's 46 Bourbon | Cognac | Benedictine | Vermouth | Bitters

It was invented by bartender Walter Berge ron in 1938 at the French Quarter's Carrousel Bar at the Hotel Monte le one.
